OBSERVATIONS

ON JUDGE CHASE'S CHARGE, AND THE
REMARKS THEREON IN THE NA-TIONAL INTELLIGENCER.

(Concluded.)

HAVING exposed the folly and fallacy of the remarks made in the Washington Paper on the Charge of Judge Chase, we now proceed to offer to our readers a few observations upon the mischiefs which may justly be apprehended from the circulation of such sentiments as those which are disclosed in those remarks, and to point out to the lovers of the federal constitution the danger which approaches with every day accelerated steps to that immediate jewel of their souls.

We must be understood as addressing ourselves to every reader's understanding, upon the grounds that by whatever name he may be called, whether federalist or republican, anti-federalist, democrat or jacobin, he professes at least to have in view the maintenance of the federal constitution. Mr. Jefferson professes as much; we hope he is sincere; the rest of course will follow him. Taking this for granted then, it will be admitted by them that that constitution was not made, nor intended to be made, in the spirit of pure democracy. But, on the contrary, was devised in the best manner the circumstances of the country would allow, upon the plan which is admitted by the most wise and experienced men in the world, to bid fairest for permanently securing the freedom of the whole against the machinations of any of its parts—we mean that of "CHECK." The Executive, the Representative, and Judiciary, were intended to compose three distinct parts, which were to be mutual checks upon each other. The Judiciary, in which the constitution deposited the right of expounding and administering the laws, was to prevent, not by its own discretionary power, but by a just application of the letter of the law to cases as they might arise, any excesses attempted by the other two parts, or either of them. But what do we see? Why we see those last shaking hands, and apparently conspiring for the overthrow of that third branch of the constitution; and in short, we see the whole fabric shattering and falling to pieces, before that spirit of pure democracy to which the demagogues of Europe, and the usurpation of Bonaparte, are at this day wholly to be attributed.

We would fain be answered by some intelligent person who has looked into such subjects a little deeper than the superficial crudities of the Rights of Man, what sort of a government is that, which at this moment lies in not very distant prospect to the United States? If our rulers will permit us to call them "Unitarians" much longer. The Representative and Executive parts, instead of being vigilant watches, checks, and controuls, each upon the other, have found out the secret that the interest; the private interest of the one is the interest of the other, compared with which the Constitution is as nothing. The constitutional check, the Judiciary, interposes to expound the laws, to point out in its official place their infractions upon the Constitution, and upon the real rights of the people, when straight they are alarmed and rise up against it; they feel that nothing can secure their misconduct from detection or hide their malversation from public view, if the wisdom, the legal knowledge, the integrity, the power, and the authority of that branch exist, and is permitted to act and act in vigour. It is a mountain that obscures the prospects of that ambitious party. It must be got out of the way; and not only the faction cry it down and dare to strike at its awful head, but the Legislative conspire to cripple, not to utterly destroy it to be sure, but to paralyse, and to put it into a state of non-effective, impotent existence: And now the country can discern in it only the shadow of a departed protector.

We venture to assert, that without any of those sound, well grounded animadversions on our part, the people if not utterly blind must perceive in the presumptuous hostility, and eager enmity of the faction, exemplified and evinced in the conduct and expressions of all its agents, to the Judiciary, a determination to accommodate by degrees not slow ones either, the government to their own views. It is unmeaning nonsense, or wilful falsehood, or mad, misjudging confidence in any one to say, "No fear of that—the people will at last perceive the bait, & throw it into the trap the feet of those who laid it." No such thing; the same artizans, mechanists in political and moral ruin, which have deceived them in the noon-day light and sunshine of the constitution and its laws, will, when the night shall come, the dusk of which is now visible, find no difficulty in sending them astray after every will-o'-the-wisp, every fire-fly which wicked ambition or vanity may generate in their corrupt hearts, till at last the whole country will be found floundering inextricably in the quagmire of some sort of abject despotism.

Assuredly this meretricious fondness of the two parts to which we allude, and this jealous exclusion of the third, bodes no good to the country. It may not now be perfected perhaps, but it is certainly a despotism in embryo, when the whole constitution, whatever it may be upon paper, has no effect no one check left upon the designs and possibly wicked views of its rulers, in possession—and when the constitutional laws are wraped, and mounds of corruption and injustice are in the way of being raised to prevent the reversion, or even the expectation of a reversion into other hands. Why is the judiciary become hateful to the democratic party?—because it is the only security against their designs. Why is every officer who will not sacrifice political principles to his own private views and the corrupt designs of that party, put out of place?—to awe some, and bribe others into compliance on one hand, and on the other, (to use the words Robespierre and his brethren) to punish the refractory. The only direct, immediate prerogative the Executive possesses, is the power over the offices. It is fortunate that it is so, for that has been most abominably abused. Readers, look round and see how many meritorious old servants of the country have been, during the present administration, deprived of bread, to trench a faction immovably in power.

Those adepts in the French code of political philosophy, bellow lustily for the Rights of Man, while they would in fact deprive their fellow citizens of them forever. They would take from them their valuable social rights to give them their ideal natural ones, or which, if more than ideal,—if substantial, are but substantial mischiefs. Speaking of man's rights in a state of society, and as they relate to government, (the only way in which the political philosophy* himself can bring them into discussion) they are his social advantages, of which government, fixed, permanent and secure, and at the same time balanced, checked and restricted by previous provisions, is one. The rights of every individual in society, exist in the duties and restrictions of the rest, which duties and restrictions he again is bound to observe in his turn towards them, as part of their retributive rights: But according to the notions of those worthies, the rights of man amount to a state of warfare, with no other mitigation, than what may occasionally be found in the fluctuations and caprices, the ebbs and flows of individual will, passion or appetite. Murder, privation of property, promiscuous sexual intercourse—these are some of the natural rights of man, dependent only upon physical power, the natural artifice, the ingenuity or address of the claimant. But wife and good men think such rights in men, wrongs to those who may be the objects of them; in short, gross evils. And have accordingly substituted the artificial rights of society in their place, by which the enjoyment of the former are forbidden. The constituting and modifying of those social rights, is matter of intellect and deep reflection, exercised in balancing the differences of good, sometimes in compromising between good and evil, and sometimes between evil and evil; rights therefore are matters not of definite inherent property, as the doctors of the jacobin code will tell us, but of computation, of measuring and of adjustment, by convention between man and man.

The rights of Americans, therefore, at this moment, are to be found in the federal constitution, as composed of the three appointed mutual aids, correctives and checks, Representative, Executive and

* The word Philosophy has been adopted for some years past, to distinguish that abominable sect of fanatics from the true philosophers.

Judiciary. And he who violates that constitution, by any infraction upon its entire mass, or any of its parts, or any part of its parts, is a plunderer of those rights, and a traitor to the people; and the very same subjection and responsibility inheres in each and every of those parts, to act as their constitution has appointed; they are the creatures of convention, and implicitly bound to perform the terms and conditions on which they were created.

From the Frederick-Town Herald.

To THOMAS JEFFERSON, Esq.
SIR,

I have hitherto been one of those who from principle have always been opposed to your election as chief magistrate; I could offer numberless reasons for my objection to you; but having determined upon a recantation of all my former stiff and honest dealing opinions, I am luckily discharged from all further connexion with any thing like reason. However, having not so entirely divested myself of my intellects, but that some small remnant of that old fashioned ex-president commodity will stick by me; and it not being the custom of modern men of consequence, such as I feel myself becoming, to renounce their old sentiments, without telling their fellow citizens why, I will endeavour to discover to you some of my motives for the change of my politics.

In the first place, I sanguinely expect an appointment to the first good and comfortable office you may have to dispose of; I shall not be too delicate or nice as to the manner or circumstances in which I may hold it; I care not whether you offer it with a will that it should be refused, as it is sneeringly reported you offered the office of Comptroller to the Hon. G. Duvall; (but this, some say they are authorized to state as untrue) and if it is not, it was a blunder and a very pardonable one, as you had no doubt often heard Mr. Duvall say, he neither wished nor expected an appointment under your administration. Nobody can ever accuse me of making so rash a declaration as this; for if I had ever said any thing like it, I must have alluded to the late administration; for it cannot be supposed I meant the present, while I, as a federalist was reviling you; a declaration to this effect would have been totally unnecessary.

I always thought you unqualified in every respect for the office of President and your being a philosopher, as I then believed you, was no among the least of my reasons for using my influence against you; for the politician and philosopher are seldom seen to meet in the same person. But in this I find I have been entirely mistaken. I believed that your description of the waters of the Potomac collecting themselves at Harper's Ferry and making as if by joint consent one great exertion to push a hole through the mountain instead of running over the top of it or making back water, shewed deep research and was truly philosophical; but upon examination, I find this idea equally absurd with your dry dock scheme. All this effectually convinces me that you are no philosopher; and this does away at least one other of my objections.

I am now also convinced as to your religious character. I was silly enough not to believe you an atheist, who Mr. Swift says is but a mad and ridiculous derider of piety, but I tho't you a hypocrite, who makes a sly jest of God and religion. In this, however I have likewise discovered my error.

I now see that you come forward like a man, and have openly and boldly taken by the hand, your oracle Tom Paine, that blasphemous burlesque upon logic and reason. Now this is not mincing the matter but doing the thing as I like it; by this you have at least satisfied me that you are no hypocrite; and if all my neighbours could be as easily satisfied as to that, it would be a very great point gained. I was all along taught to think you an old, dry fellow of no spirit, but your good old friend Callender, (who will not let you do wrong if he can help it, and whom you shewed so much address and management in secretly setting to abuse and libel Washington, that idol and old woman, as some now a days call him) has fully to my mind proved you quite the contrary; so much so as to make you a perfect gallant, egad the success, you met, and the precaution you used in writing that little essay, before you made the attack, was admirable, and as good a manoeuvre, as if a general was to make so great an impression on the inhabitants of a town besieged, by arguments, that it should be their wish to deliver up the fortress, and see him within the wall. This, it seems, was not your first essay; far from it, by this time you must be quite an adept; for we have been told of amours of a much darker complexion; in these however, you have thrown yourself determined to act up to your professions, not only in successfully exerting your energies to increase population, but in being patriotic enough to endeavor not to go out of the world, without leaving us a worthy successor, who has some of your own brave blood in his veins. To talk of successors might some short time ago have offended you, as bordering on aristocracy; but you begin by this time to think a little inequality among individuals necessary to "that great and unchangeable scheme of universal felicity."

I could adduce numberless other reasons, for the change of my politics, equally unanswerable, but this is unnecessary; as no better can possibly be used for my now becoming a convert to you. In choosing me a suitable office should you accidentally take into consideration my qualifications, I trust you'll pay due regard to the prudence, I have evinced in selecting a proper season for recantation; not like those rash, hot headed young men, who because they found you either too wicked or feeble, to maintain your post with credit to yourself or honor to America, have rejected the most flattering prospects, and deserted a victorious party, whose banners they had then under, to assist in rallying the forces of a beaten and disbanded Phalanx.

Excuse, good Sir, all errors you may discover; for I never have boasted a great deal of sense, and the little left, I feel fast evacuating; I must therefore conclude with begging you to accept a federal recantation, from yours, &c.

TIMOTHY NUMSKULL.

NEW YORK, June 21.

LITERARY FAIR.

Yesterday commenced in this city the third meeting of the American Association of Booksellers. The attendance was numerous and respectable. Booksellers from Boston, Hartford, Norwich, New Haven, New York, Philadelphia, Harrisburg, Baltimore and Alexandria, were present. Appearances afford a strong hope, that the sanguine expectations entertained of the success of this institution will be realized.

The company proceeded to the choice of officers, when it appeared that Mathew Carey was duly elected president.

Samuel Campbell, vice president, and George F. Hopkins, Sec'y.

June 22.

Captain Gilman, from Canton, informs us, that just before he sailed, John Tuck, Grand Hoopon of Canton, (Chief officer of the Customs) was poisoned by order of the Emperor of China, who sent three Mandareens from Peking for the purpose. The first gave him a poisonous pinch of snuff, the second a pill; and before the third was administered, he was a corpse. This is the mode in which he was punished for squeezing the poor. He took the poison with as much complacency as one friend would take a pinch of snuff from the box of another.

Died on board the Manchester, off the Cape of Good Hope, the 13th of April, Mr. William Carvender, of Boston, coming home as passenger.

Capt. Dodge, of the schooner Paragon, from St. Thomas, informs, that on the 16th inst. near the edge of the Gulf, he saw a ship on fire in the cabin, all the forepart of her having been burnt to the water's edge, except the timbers, which were standing.

The accounts brought by capt. Heferson, of the brig Rambler, from Guadaloupe, are to the 5th of June. At that time it was reported that 13 sail of the line and 5 frigates with troops had arrived at Barbadoes. A French frigate had sailed from Guadaloupe on a cruise. Two transports with troops had arrived at Bafferre. Great preparations for war were making at Martinique and Bafferre, great quantities of military stores having been received. An express from France lately reached the former place with orders that all the line of battle ships should be immediately sent home. There was a considerable mortality prevailing among the French troops in the islands.

A letter mentions the price of flour at Guadaloupe as at 30 dollars a barrel; and only six day's supply in town. All other provisions plenty. The writer states, that they expected a large quantity of coffee from the brigands, in consequence of an arrangement said to have been made with them. That on the 19th June, the duties on vessels would be as in the year 1789; French vessels imports free, exports 15 francs per 1000 wt. of coffee.—American vessels pay little or no duty with provisions, and concludes with stating, that that they had been 15 days without an arrival from America.

N. York Gaz.

The British Consul has left Algiers, and arrived at Alicant. This information was received at Boston, last week, and communicated to captain Noble, from Liverpool, arrived there, by capt. Lovell, of the brig Industry, from Alicant to Boston, whom he spoke at sea, on the 12th instant. To this report is added another, that war between the British and Algerines, was expected to take place.

Extract of a letter from Londonderry, dated May 8, 1803.

"At present we have great preparations for war; all the militia regiments are embodying; so that we have a great number of young soldiers among us."

"Our markets are as follows: Oatmeal from 16 ½ to 17d, potatoes from 4 ½ to 5d, per stone; beef from 6 ½ to 8d, per pound, and fresh butter from 13 to 14d. Fuel is very scarce and dear."

"The latter end of March, and most of April was as fine weather as ever I remember to have seen at that season of the year: but these two weeks past we have had very severe weather, with repeated storms of rain, hail, and snow, and as violent and cold as in the dead of winter."

PRODUCE FROM AMERICA,

Admitted for exportation paying duties as fixed until 1st January, 1804, except foreign cotton, which may be imported for home use in British ships.

Sugar, Muscovado, 34 to 39s per cwt. Havanna, brown, 39 a 42. Sugars are still heavy, but from the small stock on hand we may expect a brisk demand and an advance of prices, if the present alarm of war should soon blow over, as it is now expected. Havannas, very little on hand.

Coffee, ordinary, 92 a 104s. Middling 109 a 112, fine 120 a 125.

Cocoa, West India; brown, 72 a 76s. Carracas none at market; Coffee and Cocoa are, at present, dull, occasioned by the prospects of a war, but should peace be continued, we may soon expect a brisk demand for the continent.

Logwood, chipt, Campeachy, 26 a 27l. per ton, Honduras 25 a 26, Jamaica, 23 a 24, in brisk demand.

Cotton, New Orleans, 9 a 16d per lb. Bourbon 4 a 4 6d. The present unsettled state of affairs have thrown a damp on the manufactories, and but few purchases are making, in consequence of which cottons are dropping, particularly sea island. Upland of good qualities support their prices yet.

Mahogany, Hispaniola, 20d a 3s per foot, one inch thick. The present prices are not expected to be maintained but in the event of a war.

Fustic, 11l per ton. Dull. Hides, Buenos Ayres, 8½ a 9½ per lb. Steady and in brisk demand.

Duties. Sugars, coffee and cocoa, free; logwood 3s 6d per 100 lb. cotton, foreign 15s per 100 lb. do. B. P. 10s 6d. do. mahogany 13s per ton; fustic 15s do. hides 6d per hide.

The following may be imported for home consumption or exportation, until 1st January 1804, on paying duties as fixed:—

Cotton, Georgia, Sea Island, 20d. a 3s. 2d. Upland 1s. 1d. a 1s. 1½d. per lb. See remarks above.

Cochineal, 21 a 25s. per lb. Steady. Indigo, 5 a 10s 6d per lb. In demand.

Tobacco, James river, 3½ a 7½d per pound.

Rappahanock, 3 a 6½d. Potomac, Georgia, and Carolina, 3 1-2 a 5, stemmed 5 a 7. Maryland brown, coloury, and kitted, none at market. The importation of tobacco being very limited, prices are still improving, and every prospect of a further advance.

Indigo, Carolina, 3s 6d. a 6s 6d. per lb. None at market, and in demand. Rosin, 11 a 13s per cwt.

Turpentine, 21 a 22s per cwt. Pitch, 11 a 18s per cwt.

Tar, 20s 6d. a 21s per barrel. Naval stores continue steady.

Ashes, Pearl, 1st, 41 a 44s per cwt. pot, 1st, 43 a 46s. Very few at market, which will keep up the price.

Bees war, £12 12s per cwt. In demand.

Rice, 30s per cwt.

Flour, superfine, 34s per bbl.—Flour and wheat continues very heavy, and prices declining.

Wheat, 8 a 8s 6d. per 70lb.

Indian corn and meal, none.

Beef and pork, mels, 5 a 5l 5s per bbl. In demand.

Flax seed for sowing, do. for crushing, none.

Staves, white oak pipe, 20 a 26l per 1200; hhd. 14 a 19; bbl. 8 a 9; red oak, hhd. 2 a 5; bbl. 2 10 a 31. per ditto—Woods continue in brisk demand.

Duties. Cotton, Georgia, Sea Island, and Upland 7s 10d per 100lb cochineal 10d per lb indigo 27s per 100lb indigo, Carolina, 12s 100lb rosin 2s 6d 6 10 cwt. turpentine 2s 9d 6 10 cwt pitch 16s 10d 4 10 per 11 bbls. tar 12s 9d 8 10 per 12 bbls ashes, pearl 1st, pot do 1s 8d 7 10 per cwt. bees wax 43s 7d 8 10 per cwt rice 9s 5d 6 10 cwt. wheat, Indian corn and meal, beef and pork, free; flax. seed 3s per bushel; staves White Oak, 2s 7d. 6 13 per 120; hhd. do 1s 9d 5 10 do. bbl. 153d 6 10 do. red oak hhd 1s 9d 6 10 do bbl 1s 3d. 6 10 do.

Tobacco upon importation is allowed to be deposited in the king's stores free of expence, for eighteen months, and when removed (if not exported) the duty is paid by the buyer, which is 1s 6d per 100lb. more in American than in British ships.

Flour. Grain and provisions of all kinds (rice excepted) are allowed to be imported free of duty, until the 4 Jan. 1804.

The above duties are fixed on American bottoms.

Government bills 45 per cent.

We observe in a late paper under the head of "London Fashions, for April," the following remarks:—

"Several dashing fair ones have lately appeared in Persian trowsers, edged with white lace, peeping beneath the bottom of the petticoat and shewing visibly through a thin upper garment."

It has been feared that modern fashionable refinement would finally come to this.—Without pretending to believe that any very serious plot of conspiracy is on foot, we would merely suggest, that if the Ladies succeeded well in wearing trowsers, the time is not far distant when they will boldly assert their rights to put on the breeches.

ORIGINAL ANECDOTE.

A Federalist and democrat were lately conversing about the election, when the federalist declared it to be his opinion, that our country was in a perilous condition and he feared was fast going to destruction. The Democrat, on the contrary thought the United States was never in so prosperous a situation; and, the dispute running high, it was at length agreed to refer the question to an old gentleman (a revolutionary patriot) who was present. The old soldier declined giving a direct opinion—but, with much good humor, related a story in the following words:—"A jack-rar, growing sick of his business, deserted his ship, went into the country, and hired himself to a farmer. He was immediately set to plowing, with a yoke of oxen and an old mare called Jin. The sailor being wholly unacquainted with the management of the tacks, shafts and bowlines of his old mare and oxen, in his first attempt to put about, missed days, and, by turning the yoke, threw Jin and the oxen all down in a heap together. Jack, frightened with the confusion, bawled out for help. The farmer asked, "what's the matter?" "Matter! Matter enough," replied Jack, "the larboard ox has got on the starboard side; old Jin has got foul in the rigging; and they are all going to the devil's foremast."
